

Poem 1 Deforestation by Sian Mein

The rainforest is slowly disintegrating ( These two lines really show what's happening to the rainforest

Getting chopped down for our needs, how they are really just getting taken down.)

And whilst we are all debating,

We need to plant more seeds. (This line is talking about growing more trees so we can outgrow the ones coming down)

So when we cut down the trees,

We should help the animals around,

What you need to plant is an extra three. (This line goes along with one above, about planting one for every tree that falls down.)

For when that tree hits the ground

They help us with medicines when we are ill,

However, we still chop them to the ground. (It's like saying there is no good reason to cut the trees down, especially when they do such good the author is telling these people to think about all the animals and environments there hurting.)

Think about all those poor creatures we kill,

Petrifying them with the sound.

Provide homes for people that live there,

Or make things around the house, ( These lines are very powerful, they talk about the damage deforestation is causing and what there using these trees for. It shows the message from the whole poem just in these lines.)

From tables to even the kitchen chair,

But this can kill cats to even a mouse.

And there are many things that we can do,

Not just sit there and let it materialize,

We CAN save those animals too,

And to the World, we have to open our eyes.

The rainforest is slowly disintegrating, (Back to talking about the people realizing the damage and to look out for a cause.)Getting chopped down for ALL our needs, And whilst we are all debating, We Have To Stop These Bad Deeds! By Sian Mein

Poem 2 Deforestation by Effy Sky

Deforestation, dying of the trees; (Describing what deforestation is to grab attention on the event.)

Evilness approaching;

Forest, the home of the animals;

Owned by the animals; (These lines are saying what and how, what was it home for animals, and how did it get destroyed? Humans. This line adds emotion. This also tells the audience what was happening inside the forest.)

Ruined by humans;

Everlasting the destruction is;

A side effect of the deforestation is destruction;

Trees, getting cut by the humans; (It's like the author got asked a question shes describing what's happening to raise a response.)

Attacking the forest by cutting it;

The homes of the animals are destroyed;

If we don't stop we will destroy nature;

Otherwise, humans will die; ( These lines show effects of what will happen, ending the poem with emotion. The reader will think about the topic after reading because it caused a feeling.)

No one can change the past if we don't.

Poem 3

Deforestation and mechanization,

Have vanquished, (As a person reading this they could be thinking why, why have the tribes and animals banished. This style of poetry leads the reader on wanting to know more.)

Tribes and animals,

Have been banished.

United the world must stand,

Against those,

Who grab green land.

Corporations brazenly,

Partake in this nab,

Their only thought

To possess and to grab. ( The author is almost asking a question, what are they gaining by destroying the forest and ruining land. Not a lot of emotion but more a statement.)

What do they gain,

In this pitiful game,

Only fear of a lion or tiger

Or a man with a knife

Who has to fend for cubs,

Or a family of five!

The elite but greedy few,

Will be the target of revenge, (These lines are almost insisting karma saying bad things will happen to those who ruined forests and cut down the animals trees.)

Karma will be due.

Forest dwellers and animals,
Must sustain their livelihood,
When driven to an
Urban neighborhood.

They need to survive,
And will attack to stay alive!
Wouldn't it be grand,

If we could be assured (The last part of this poem is in the emotion of anger and frustration, angry about the forest being destroyed, the author makes it seem so anger like it makes the reader feel intimidated.)

That our forests remain
As precious green land!

My poem- Deforestation By Alyssa Fohl

What do they get,
A new table a chair, a paper receipt.
What did the animals do,
To deserve there home ruined,
Trees fall every day,
No one hears a thing.
Lives are taken beautiful land too.
Destroyed with no warning,
What would you do?
Too late to do anything?

What do they get,
A new table a chair, a paper receipt.

( I wanted to start off with a guilty line something to make the reader feel bad, asking what the reason was. I think this will make the reader pay attention more to the problem.)

What did the animals do,
To deserve there home ruined,
Trees fall every day,(In these lines I was wondering what did the animals do to deserve all of this. These lines also show what's happening day to day.)

No one does a thing.
Lives are taken beautiful land.
With no warning, things get destroyed,
Trees start falling, Animals will flee. ( To end the poem I wanted to remind the reader what was said before, the asking of why, why did the forest get destroyed. It also ends with emotion to show that now some land has been taking and its too late.)

What did you get out of it?
Too late to do anything.
